

GERMANY BUILDING RAILROADS IN TURKEY

Great Transformation in Railway Communication Noted by Correspondent.

Berlin, Aug. 3.—Palestine is undergoing a great transformation in the matter of railway communication, improved highways, and better sanitary conditions. This is evident from a letter to the Frankfurter Zeitung from its correspondent in Jaffa, the seaport of Jerusalem, who has been interviewing Djemal Pasha, the military governor of Syria. This work has all been undertaken since Turkey went to war and is largely in preparation for extensive military operations against Egypt. Already, according to Djemal Pasha, the Suez canal has been mined and one ship sunk.

"Immediately after my arrival in Syria," said Djemal, who is one of the leaders of the dominant "Young Turk" party, "my first work was to take measures to improve and extend the roads. Many battalions of workmen were organized for the purpose of building important new roads and putting into repair old ones that had become useless. Formerly you could not go further south in a carriage than Hebron, but already I can ride in my automobile through Hebron and Beersheba out into the desert."

Here the correspondent remarks that he spent a whole day last year riding horseback from Hebron to Beersheba, where the distance can now be covered by automobile in one hour.

"Within a short time," Djemal went on, "we have built over one hundred kilometers of railway and have connected Jerusalem with the Hejaz railway (the road that runs south from Aleppo and Damascus, over the plateau to the east of the Jordan, and on southward to Mecca.) You doubtless know how anxious the English were to prevent the building of this connection. They refused to give the French, their own allies, the right to carry this road through Ramleh because they were determined under any and all circumstances to prevent a land connection from Syria and Anatolia to Egypt. Now we want to carry these roads still further, and I hope that we shall soon be able to transport our troops by rail to the Suez Canal. After our troops enter Egypt, an event which I confidently expect, these railways will be connected with the Egyptian system of roads."

The correspondent thinks that this railway building will prove of epoch-making importance for the development of Palestine.

Djemal went on to show what the Turkish troops have already accomplished in preparing for the conquest of Egypt. "We have pushed forward our frontier, which formerly ran in a straight line from Tel-el-Rafah on the Mediterranean to Akaba (on the gulf of that name) a close to the Suez canal, and we are trying by all possible means to open up this conquered territory. We have dug numerous wells there, which will supply our troops with water, and we have taken all steps necessary to enable our troops to stay there and also to go forward. This means also that we have opened up this wilderness for settlement by a fixed population. As the English, in disregard of all existing treaties that guarantee the neutrality of the Suez canal, have built fortifications to the east of it and have thus drawn the canal into the sphere of hostilities, we were no longer able to regard the canal as neutral territory. We therefore put mines at various places in it, and these have already caused the sinking of one ship."

Sanitary conditions, said Djemal, were satisfactory, in spite of the mobilization of troops. The fight against epidemic diseases had been facilitated, he said, by the International Health Office established at Jerusalem some years ago by Nathan Straus of New York and a number of German philanthropists.

BUILD TWO STORE ROOMS

Mary J. Miller Earle Asks Permission to Build on Church Street.

Mary J. Miller Earle has made application at the city hall for permission to erect two store rooms on West church street on her lot in rear of the Kress building. The lot faces 53 feet on Church street and is 100 feet deep. She plans to erect a two story building covering the entire 53 feet and running back 80 feet. She plans an arched driveway between the two store rooms. The permit calls for a nice building with cream brick front and plate glass windows, etc. The application has not been acted on because of City Engineer Sanders' illness.

Mr. J. C. Duckworth Denies He Will Run For Auditor's Office.

Auditor Winston Smith is in receipt of a letter from Mr. J. C. Duckworth of Williamston in which he denies that he will be a candidate for the office of auditor in the primary next summer. Mr. Duckworth stated that any such reports were false and that he was going to run for any office, he would not run against Mr. Smith.

The King Among Hunting Dogs.

In the August American Magazine John Tainter Foote wrote another story of a great dog entitled "Dumb-bell's Check." In the follow extract Mr. Foote explains about the great championships in which dogs compete:

There are two championships in which field trial dogs compete. The winning of either means everlasting glory. One, the "National," is run in Tennessee on quail. The other, the "All America," is run in the Far West on prairie chicken.

The winner of the National or the All American has Champion written before his name from that day on, and never again may he compete in open trials. He is crowned King, whose sons and daughters are of the blood royal.

Got Himself Disliked.
"Why does the bride hate him?" "He's one of those practical jokers whom everybody hates. The bride asked him to come over and try some of her biscuits."

"Didn't he go?"
"Yes, and took a hammer and a cold chisel with him."

Delightful Party.

Miss Louise Rideout, an attractive visitor from Highland, was Mrs. Ralph Thompson's charming honor guest at a beautiful party on Monday evening. The whole lower floor of this handsome home was thrown together, and here a merry party of about a hundred young people gathered and spent a very happy evening. Nectar was served by Miss Edna Thompson, while others assisting in entertaining the guests were Misses Louise and Marguerite Henry and Catherine Sullivan.

A delightful sweet course was served later in the evening.

First—Get the Right Wife.
In the August number The American Magazine begins a new department deals with the saving, spending and investing of the family's money. Following is one contributor's idea of the kind of wife the young man of today should choose if he means to have his earning appreciated:

"We have noticed your new department. My wife, who comes from the Middle West and is intensely practical, says this is the time to tell you something; she is sure of after long observation, she says:

"Let the married folks go; it is too late to help them. But do tell the young unmarried men to pick out wives who come of families of some means—people who know the value of money. This idea that poor girls make thrifty wives is not sound. The worst spendthrift wives I know came from poor families. Not knowing the value of money—never having seen much before—they are absolutely reckless with their husbands' coin. They don't know where the money came from, how hard it came, and they have no idea of using it judiciously. The young wife who has seen something of money all her life, having lived in a family partly composed of successful men folks, is more likely to have business sense. When she marries a poor man she will investigate his affairs, understand them, and be of some business use in the household. Two can squeeze pennies tighter than one."

Why She Was Haunted.
At a party Miss Brown had sung "It's a Long Way to Tipperary," and for days after she was singing or humming it to herself.
"It seems to haunt me," she said to a friend, who had also been at the party.
"No wonder," said the friend. "Look at the way you murdered it."

Commands American Marines In Haiti.

Admiral William B. Caperton.

The government of Hayti has blown up again with the result that the president has been lynched after an order. President Guillaume, just before his enemies became all powerful, ordered 160 prisoners killed. Among them was Oreste Zamor, the former president.

Relatives of the prisoners and partisans of Zamor took possession of Port au Prince, drove the president to the French Legation home and then entered that over the protest of the French minister. Guillaume's body was riddled with bullets and then dragged through the streets.

Admiral William B. Caperton, on the United States cruiser Washington, which had been on the north coast of Hayti, hurried to the scene to protect American life and property.

SEN. LOUIS WARNS OF FUTURE CONFLICT

"If we persist in the violation of this fundamental law of nations and continue to press our disadvantage against the sure fate of its consequences, then let us promptly embark upon the era of army and navy in quantity and quality, sufficient to defend us against invasion and to protect our possessions. The latter undertaking is too stupendous in expense and sacrifice to be entered upon, if there is a nobler and more consistent course for the republic of the United States to take. I propose an alternative. I propose we retain the government of the United States within her own borders, x x x and in conjunction with all the governments of South America and their allies with the South American republics make a common cause for the protection of republican form of government in the western hemisphere. Have joint alliances of friendship, by declaring that our Monroe Doctrine shall be meant in no wise to interfere with the purely internal affairs of the South American lands, but that it shall be limited to the protection of the western hemisphere by the United States against any effort on the part of monarchial nations to overcome by force any republic or free people in the western hemisphere. Then, in turn for this guarantee, have a brotherhood compact with all the western hemisphere republics that we mutually will oppose any invasion by Europe or Asia from this continent, or any entrance by them as governments upon the sphere of republics, except as shall be in pursuance of the spirit of treaties previously made. Then, add to this compact a demand calling for open seas to all people and an exchange of products of nations upon equal terms to all people. Then we, restored to the principles of American republics, can announce the doctrines of international law to the world, suggesting the terms of amity and the codes of law."

"We will then stand as America—one continent, united for republican government by republican form and democratic spirit."

No "Smoke of Battle" in Modern Warfare.
One of the marked features of the European conflict that distinguishes it from the wars of the past is the absence of smoke from the firing lines. Owing to the use of smokeless powder, no smoke is made when a rifle is discharged, while the heaviest artillery throws off nothing more than a thin mist that is invisible a hundred yards away and disappears within a few seconds after the gun is fired. Only when shrapnel or a shell explodes in the enemy's lines is there anything visible in the way of smoke, the whole purpose being to conceal the position of the guns throwing the projectiles while making the points where the projectiles explode clearly visible. The expression, "the smoke of battle," so faithfully descriptive of the wars of the past, has little meaning when applied to a modern war.

Patrolmen to Salute Flag.
Los Angeles, Aug. 3.—The chief of police last night ordered patrolmen to salute the American flag every time it passes them on the streets. It takes only a second, he declared. The sign of respect is appreciated. By every one who witnesses the evidence of loyalty and it is an uplifting example to the young.

HAD A REASON.

We have just heard about a Lakewood lady who advertised for a girl to do general housework and got a jewel of a personal reply. The young woman who answered the ad was strong, capable, intelligent, neat and possessed of training for the position. "You'll do!" cried the lady of the house, happily. "Now let's see your references."

"Ay ent got no references, mum," confessed Hilda. "Ay ban tore 'em up."

"What? Tore them up? Why, you must have been mad!"

"Ay was, ven ay saw 'em. Dot's vy ay ban tore 'em up!"

Taking No Chances.
Jack—The ring doesn't seem to fit very well, Alice. Hadn't I better take it back and have it made smaller?
Alice—No, Jack; an engagement ring is an engagement ring, even if I had to wear it around my neck.

NOT MUCH SHOW.

He—Don't you think we could be happy on $20 per week?
She—Well, I couldn't be happy with my first husband on $30.

'Twas Ever Thus.
You cannot satisfy some men. No matter how you try. Give them the bread they ask for And they will kick for pie.

His Type.
"The writer you introduced to me was very stooped and awkward. And he has such a poor carriage."
"Of course. He's nothing but a hack."

No Inferior Place.
"Did you select your son's college for its curriculum, Mrs. Comeup?"
"Of course, we did. The boy's always been accustomed to the best kind of a one at home."

Patrice—Now in speaking of college togs don't forget the overalls.

Legal Talk.
"That fellow must be a lawyer."
"Are you a reader of character?"
"No," said the waiter, "but when I asked him to repeat his order he said a ham sandwich as aforesaid."

Homely Girl.
"Glasses improve Maud's looks a good deal."
"Naturally; they conceal part of her face."

BUT NOT CALLING MAYHAP.

Big Sister—Fred says if I don't keep you out of the room when he calls he will stop calling.
Willie—Well, sis, dey's others, you know.

Premature Joy.
He popped the maiden answered, "Yes!" With joy he thought he'd smothered; But she'd not finished. "Yes—today I said 'Yes' to another."

The Latest Thing.
"Now, this one is stuffed with anti-septic sawdust and dressed in thoroughly sterilized clothes."
"I see. A eugenic doll baby."—Puck.

Shame on You, Paw.
Little Lemuel—Say, paw, what's the good of war, anyway?
Paw—Well, son, it takes a lot of brass bands to the front.
